

TRANSKULTURNA PSIHOSOCIJALNA
OBRAZOVNA FONDACIJA - TPO

(January-December, 2015)

INTRODUCTION

TPO Foundation worked on its three key programmes: ELLI (Education, Learning and Living), PaR (Peace building and Reconciliation) and LIFE (Leadership for Equality) in 2015.

The implementation of the project “Psychosocial Support in B&H” was continued in the flooded areas of Eastern and Northern B&H and within its framework we have begun a research on trauma and violence against children, young people and women. Floods that occurred in B&H have somewhat directed a part of our activities by which we wanted to show care and solidarity in the local communities that were neglected, particularly small rural areas. Since the greatest concern of the majority of donors and organizations was remediation of the material damage, TPO Foundation decided to pay attention more to the psychosocial programmes with young people and engage volunteers from the University of Tuzla to work with children.

The second part of activities was related to LIFE Programme-leadership of young people and women. Through the new and educational contents in the form of comics, stories, essays and exhibitions we tried to encourage young people to engage themselves in leadership. All these activities were permeated with the idea of gender equality which is the integral frame of all programme contents. Beside this, the great research “Gender and Leadership in Politics and Business”, whose results will be presented in the book by the end of 2016, is completed.

The third part of the programme included the implementation of learning on ethical values. A part of that programme is the project “Global Ethics in B&H Schools” that we began in 2013. Cooperation with Ministries of Education in several cantons proved to be fruitful and we managed to educate over 200 teachers. The web portal etos.ba was launched and it will be used by teachers to put and exchange teaching contents and learn from each other. The summer camp for children was also supported and the comics were distributed to them.

Every year TPO Foundation commemorates traditionally the International Women’s Day and 16 Days of Activism against Gender based Violence with apposite activities.

I thank TPO Foundation Team for successful cooperation.

I PSYCHOSOCIAL SUPPORT IN BOSNIA AND HERZEGOVINA

Activity 1 Presentations of the Handbook “Living on the Landslide”

Within the project “Psychosocial Support in Bosnia and Herzegovina”, TPO Foundation and the University of Tuzla contribute, through education and preparation of educational materials, in solving the problems to which the population affected by floods in B&H is exposed.

One of the segments of the project was the issuance and presentation of the handbook “Living on the Landslide”, which tackles the issue of implementation of preventive measures, which are caused by floods in May 2014, and the landslide stabilization. The authors of the manual are Rejhana Dervišević, PhD and Zijad Ferhatbegović, PhD.

On February 4, 2015, TPO Foundation organized in Srebrenik the presentation of the handbook for the public, representatives of local communities and representatives of the Municipality of Srebrenik. The citizens, by participating actively in a conversation with the authors of the handbook, exchanged their personal experiences regarding the problems of the landslides and got instructions and tips on how to recognize the landslides, and repair them temporarily.

The second presentation of the handbook for the citizens and representatives of local communities of the Municipality Gradačac in Gradačac was held on March 17, 2015. During the presentation the authors pointed out to the mechanisms of landslides and the causes which contribute to the initiation of earth masses, as well as measures taken to prevent and eliminate the damage.

Activity 2 Two-Day Trainings for Volunteers

Within the project “Psychosocial support in B&H” TPO Foundation started realization of three trainings for volunteers. The workshops are aimed to assess the psychological state of children and youth who have suffered damage after last year's floods and to provide assistance through psychosocial workshops and interactive meetings. During the trainings it was concluded that the volunteers and helpers need to determine the needs and methods that will be used in work with children and young people in flooded areas. The participants were instructed how to establish a conversation with children and their parents and creative ways to interact with them. Lecture was concluded that B&H is still in a difficult transitional situation and that people affected by various traumatizing events need psychosocial support to overcome the trauma and to develop a healthier environment, and that there is a great need to establish a Volunteer Centre, which will primarily organize trainings and educational programs for the volunteers who will be prepared to assist in various crisis situations.

The first two - day training of the three planned trainings was held in Tuzla on April 11-12, 2015. Participants were students of the final years of the Medical Faculty of the University of Tuzla.

The second two-day training of volunteers of the Union of Students in Tuzla was held on April 25 - 26, 2015. The training participants (19 volunteers) were students of the Faculty of Medicine, Faculty of Education and Rehabilitation and the Faculty of Philosophy in Tuzla.

The third two-day training of volunteers of the Union of Students in Tuzla was held on May 9 -

10, 2015. The training participants (32 volunteers) are students of the Faculty of Medicine, Faculty of Education and Rehabilitation, the Faculty of Philosophy and the Faculty of Natural Sciences and Mathematics. Young volunteers come from the Bosnian-Herzegovinian cities - Derventa, Modriča, Teočak, Gornji Vakuf-Uskoplje, Maglaj, Doboj Istok, Zavidovići, Tuzla, Kalesija, Ljubuški, Živinice, Gradačac, Gračanica, Srebrenik, Mostar, Brčko, Doboj, and from Croatian cities – Rijeka and Vukovar.

All trainings were led by Dr. Amra Delić, the neuropsychiatrist and psychotherapist from Tuzla, an activist in the field of human rights, dialogue and reconciliation and assisted by Irma Ramić, a representative of the Student Union of Medical Faculty in Tuzla.

Activity 3 Workshops for children from the flood affected areas in B&H Within the project “Psychosocial support in B&H” in April 2015, volunteers from Student Union of the University of Tuzla Ena Alibegović and Monika Stojak in cooperation with TPO Foundation held the first workshop in Donja Obodnica, Tuzla. The workshop was attended by 17 children of different ages: pre-school, school, and one member of the Higher Education.

Volunteers – students of the Faculty of Medicine, Faculty of Education and Rehabilitation and the Faculty of Philosophy in Tuzla (Volunteers of the Union of Students of the University of Tuzla) – in cooperation with TPO Foundation realizing the Project “Psychosocial support in B&H” implemented series of workshops for children and youth from Tuzla Canton in Donja Obodnica, Stanić Rijeka - Doboj Istok and Kikači - Kalesija. Seven organized workshops brought together 113 children aged 6-15 years. Fourteen volunteers participate in the preparation and implementation of these workshops. For more information about the workshops please visit our website:

<http://tpo.ba/b/novosti/1505ucionicatuzla.html>

Twelve trained volunteers of the Union of Students of the University of Tuzla – Elma Mujčinović, Edin Mujčinović, Edin Čerkezović, Emir Brzović, Elmira Begić, Almir Halilović, Eldina Mahmuzić, Alisa Mujanović, Dajana Nakić, Anita Pejić, Marina Supuković and Asmir Smajlović – in cooperation with TPO Foundation held six workshops in the elementary school Klokočnica, Stanić Rijeka, the Municipality of Doboj

Istok during April 2015. The workshop was attended by 76 school children from 1st to 4th grade.

Parents of children were present at the beginning to get acquainted with the volunteers and the content of the activities. Children had the opportunity to get familiar, and then through a drawing represent their families. Older students and students talked through their drawings about traumatic experiences they remember regarding flooding, displacement from their homes and more. These were rare occasions on which children had an opportunity to talk and think about the abovementioned themes, so they accepted the work and cooperation with volunteers delightfully.

Activity 4 Presentations and activities of 15 partner mental health associations in B&H

Within the project “Psychosocial Support in Bosnia and Herzegovina” TPO Foundation has signed a Memorandum of Understanding with XY Association/Mental Health Project in Bosnia and Herzegovina which aims to implement programs to empower services for mental health associations’ users. The goal of the program was to establish a partnership association with young professionals in the field of psychosocial care at the local level which has to provide administrative and educational support. This initiative provided greater availability of psychosocial support in the field of mental health. The project was covered by associations and users in 15 cities/ associations in Bosnia and Herzegovina: “Zajedno” Banja Luka, “Svi” Bosanski Petrovac, “Ruka ruci” Brčko, “Nada” Doboј, “Tunel” Ključ, “Nisi sam” Milići, “In Spe” Mostar, “U zdravlje” Mrkonjić Grad, “Apel” Sanski Most, “Mensanna” Sarajevo, “Podijeli osmjeh” Srebrenica, “Sonata” Trebinje, “Naš glas” Tuzla, “Stella” Zenica and “Zvono” Zvornik. During 2014 and 2015 all these mentioned associations implemented numerous activities and exhibitions. All activities and workshops where organized according to the methodology of the occupational-work therapy.

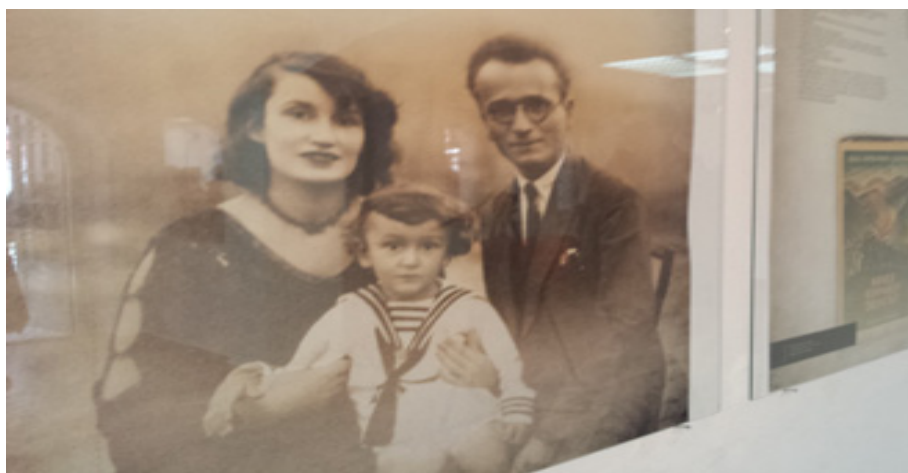

II COMMEMORATION OF THE INTERNATIONAL WOMEN'S DAY

Activity 1 Exhibition “NIČIJA ZEMLJA”, the revolutionary writer and poetess Vera Obrenović-Delibašić

On March 8, TPO Foundation in cooperation with the Museum of Literature and Theatre Arts of B&H opened an exhibition entitled “No Man's Land” (originally “Ničija zemlja”), dedicated to the revolutionary writer and poetess Vera Obrenović-Delibašić. This writer and poetess left a significant mark on the B&H cultural heritage dealing with the engaged art through literature in the era of World War II when engaged art was considered and recognized as a man's job. The exhibition was opened by the director of the Museum and exhibition author Šejla Šehabović, author Zlatan Delić and project coordinator of TPO Foundation Monja Šuta-Hibert. The exhibition lasted five days and was accompanied by educational programs for youth “Open Classroom”.

Activity 2 Open classroom for youth: “Violence against Girls and Women - Prevention and Responsibilities”

Within five days of the exhibition “Ničija zemlja” dedicated to the poetess Vera Obrenović-Delibašić at the Museum of Literature and Theatre Arts of Bosnia and Herzegovina, TPO Foundation implemented open classroom for young people entitled “Violence against Girls and Women - Prevention and Responsibilities”. Guests of the open classrooms were members of the Youth Council of Novo Sarajevo and students of higher grades of elementary school “Džemaludin Čaušević”. Lecturer of this open classroom was Arijana Ćatović, the psychotherapist. Before they started a discussion on the topic, attendees had the opportunity to see artistic performance entitled “Presijeci” (“Cut”), which was carried out by young actresses of Academy of Performing Arts Sarajevo. The aim of the performance was to introduce various forms of violence against women through body language and music, and to send a message that we are all obliged to react to any form of violence and to work to prevent it in society. Ćatović presented violence as a way of taking power and is primarily emotional violence which causes psychological, physical, sexual, and economic and any other violence. Violence against women in various forms is most present in our community. In cases between men and women, violence begins with sweet words, excessive attention and kindness, then it grows into inspection, testing, criticism, followed by the violence that is difficult to treat. The conclusions of this open classroom were that each person should be aware that he or she may become a victim of one or more forms of violence. Identification and recognition of any form of violence will help solve the problem and protect from experiencing further violent behavior and that every person should be aware that he or she has the right and opportunity to break the cycle of violent behavior and that we are all required to help people suffering from violence.

Activity 3 Open classroom for young people with UN Women representative

Within celebration of the International Women's Day, on March 12, 2015 TPO Foundation in cooperation with Museum of Literature and Theatre Arts of Bosnia and Herzegovina implemented an open classroom whose guests were second grade students of IB Middle Years Programme of Second Gymnasium Sarajevo, while the lecturer was a representative of the Agency of the United Nations for Gender Equality and the Empowerment of Women in B&H, Anne-Marie Esper Larsen. Moderator of open classroom and project coordinator Melika Šahinović welcomed the attendees and introduced the programs of TPO Foundation and activities within the International Women's Day to them. Esper Larsen presented the importance of UN Security Council Resolution 1325 - Women, Peace and Security and reflected it on the position of women in Bosnia and Herzegovina who are, in addition to the horrible suffering that they experienced during the war, still in difficult economic and social position. Esper Larsen stressed systematic rape, which the UN Resolution 1325, after the events in Bosnia and Herzegovina and Rwanda, has been included in the international criminal law as one of the most serious war crimes. After the introduction to the topic, discussion was opened with students who shared their opinions on the topics of political, economic, and social participation of women in our society, stereotypes and barriers women are faced with. Some felt that women should be more united and fight for their goals while others believed that enough space for acting of women in society is still not allowed and a variety of activities and initiatives that support the empowerment of women are of great need.

Activity 4 Open classroom for young people with the director of the Museum of Literature and Theatre Arts of Bosnia and Herzegovina

On March 9, 2015 the Open Classroom themed “The Literary Canon for Beginners” was held with the pupils of the Primary school “Safvet bey Bašagić”. The lecturer was Šejla Šehabović, a director of the “Museum of Literature and Theatre Art of B&H” and they discussed the invisibility of the female writers in BH literature on this very occasion.

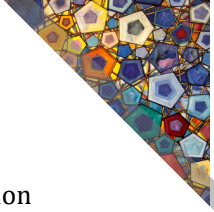

III CREATIVE WORKSHOPS FOR YOUNG PEOPLE AND PROMOTION OF THE COMIC BOOK NIRA

Activity 1 Seven (7) interactive educational “Nira” workshops

Within the project Initiative for Creative Dialogue and Education ICDE, TPO Foundation hired two comic designers: Filip Andronik and Esmir Prlja and two text authors: Elma Softić-Kaunitz and Pavle Kaunitz who wrote ten (10) stories for comic book “Nira”. After the first promotions in December 2014, TPO Foundation continued to promote and use comic book “Nira” for educational purposes in March 2015.

As a part of a joint initiative of TPO Foundation and the Museum of Literature and Theatre Arts of Bosnia and Herzegovina, TPO Foundation provided its entire March activities focusing on different educational programs aiming at young people from Bosnia and Herzegovina.

These educational programs were addressed not only to the basic principles of human rights and civic activism, but were also related to the position of young girls and women and gender equality in general. Therefore, the TPO Foundation visited numerous high schools, training centers and public libraries across the country where TPO team realized seven (7) workshops for groups of 15-20 pupils (first and second grades of high school).

The aim of the workshop was to, through creative exercises and participatory practices, encourage young people not only to think about the issues related to civic activism, volunteerism and human rights but also on alternative forms of critical thinking and articulation. In this regard, during these workshops was also held the promotion of the comic book "Nira" and its use for educational purposes was a unique opportunity for all the participants and guests to get acquainted not only with the comic book "Nira" but also with the art of comic in general and through creative practices review responsibility own actions towards self and others.

The seven (7) mentioned workshops were held at the following schools and institutions: City Library in Kakanj, High School "Edhem Mulabdić" in Maglaj, Youth Centre "Centar" in Mrkonjić Grad in Republic of Srpska, Centre for Culture and Information – National Library in Srebrenik, Elementary School "Novi Šeher" in Novi Šeher, Elementary School "Srednje" in Srednje and the Elementary School "Podlugovi" in Podlugovi. This seven (7) workshops resulted in participation of more than one hundred and twelve (112) young participants.

Association “Another Angle” (original name: “Drugi ugao”) unveiled latest comic production available in B&H and beyond at the STRIPITI Fest. This year (July 2015) at STRIPITI Fest, TPO Foundation presented the comic book NIRA and Bauk FemiNauk edition with more than 20 comics. The coordinator of the ICDE project, Melika Šahinović, among other exhibitors of traditional and innovative comics, presented activities of the foundation and two years work on the comic books as a form of expression that communicates different messages intertwined with images and words that encourage learning, reflection and work and combine creativity and civic activism. The text authors Elma Softić-Kaunitz and Pavle Kaunitz presented the idea of creating a heroine Nira and two-year work on ten comic stories of Nira. Bauk FemiNauk is presented through two editions of 2014 and 2015, which, through humorous comic situations, makes people question prejudices about feminism, gender equality and position of women in contemporary BH society.

TPO Foundation presented the future plans to the public, which primarily refers to the second issue of the comic book novel NIRA, a book on stories of heroine Nira, continuation of work on the second edition of the comic Bauk FemiNauk and publication of columns on gender equality stereotypes. Exhibition of comics was held also at the National Art Gallery of Bosnia and Herzegovina. After that, Filip Andronik and Neven Misaljević gave interviews in Serbia and Macedonia about NIRA comic book novel.

V WRITING, DESIGNING AND PUBLISHING OF TEN (10) NEW EDITIONS BOGEY FEMITEACHING STORIES (BAUK FEMINAUK)

Within the project Initiative for Creative Dialogue and Education (ICDE) TPO Foundation produced two editions of Bogey FemiTeaching created in 2014 and in September 2015. The Bogey FemiTeaching stories represent the life situations within which feminist activists, and all those who do not share the identity publicly, expressing or advocating for gender equality, face every day. We strongly believe that critical questioning of gender politics norms in a society, through this kind of media, can and will help make a more realistic approach to the issue of discrimination, oppression and exclusion.

VI WRITING, DESIGNING AND PUBLISHING OF THE COMIC BOOK NIRA 2 AND A COLLECTION OF SHORT STORIES “NIRA’S CHALLENGES”

After the first edition of the comic book novel “Nira”, TPO Foundation continued cooperation with authors Elma Softić-Kaunitz and Pavle Kaunitz, and the final result of it was a publishing of a comic book “Nira” and a collection of short stories “Nira’s Challenges”. The aim of these publications is to motivate and encourage young people to learn creatively, read, reflect, act properly and be active participants of the community in which they live with the message that every individual has rights and obligations to be active in the development of democratic civil society and help to protect and promote human rights.

VII WRITING, EDITING AND DESIGNING OF THE BOOK “GENDER STEREOTYPES: SOUNDS FAMILIAR?” WITHIN BOGEY FEMITEACHING EDITION

The book “Gender Stereotypes: Sounds Familiar?” was born within the project Initiative for Creative Dialogue and Education (ICDE) implemented by TPO Foundation Sarajevo. The book was edited by Monja Šuta-Hibert and the review was written by Ms. Radmila Rangelov-Jusović and Professor Damir Kukić. The book is a collection of essays written by various authors who deal with gender equality in various segments of life, prejudices on feminism and position of women in contemporary B&H society. It represents a unique combination of so called educational comics with short thematic texts that discuss several gender and feminist issues and aspects closely related to education, patriarchal and family values, law, science, religion, politics, media and other numerous gender based discriminatory practices. A lodestar through the whole process was the fact that they who knew very little about feminism were usually the fiercest critics and that those who were the loudest claimed they had never been the slaves of gender stereotypes and prejudices repeated the same thing on a daily basis. It should be emphasized that this very book represents one of the shifts taken on the daily basis in order to reach a wider circle of people and to work on raising awareness and breaking of deeply rooted prejudices. Beside mentioned activities TPO Foundation also made animation of 5 comics from the "Bogey FemiTeaching" edition. We intend to make more and this audiovisual material will be used for educational purposes and promotion of the gender equality concept.

VIII A GLOBAL ETHIC IN A SCHOOL: INTEGRATING A GLOBAL ETHIC INTO EDUCATIONAL STRUCTURES AND PROCESSES IN BOSNIA-HERZEGOVINA

Activity 1 Research modules required for the delivery of training for teachers as well as the selection and counseling future trainers and the moderators

In order to implement the workshops professionally as much is possible, and to deliver to the workshops' participants better insight into the specificity of the proposed methodology, it was decided that the first project facilitators will be: Mr. Alen Kristić (in charge of the theoretical aspect of the workshop)

Ms. Monja Šuta-Hibert (in charge of methodology and audio-visual materials) and Ms. Sedžida Hadžić (in charge of methodology and working plan in bh. schools). In this sense, facilitators managed to create a very successful teaching module that included aspects such as: Training objectives; "A Global Ethic: Rules of the Globalized World"; "A Global Ethic as a Pedagogical Project"; "A Global Ethic – Jewish, Christian, Islamic and Philosophical Foundation"; "A Global Ethic in B&H – Contextualization and Application", as well as guidelines and demonstration of a number of school classes and thematic units covered by the manual "A Global Ethic Under the School Roof".

Activity 2 Insight, definition and involvement of local partners (Pedagogical Institute and Ministry of Education of Sarajevo Canton) and participants (High schools in Sarajevo Canton)

When it comes to B&H education, it should be noted that the Bosnian curricula is extremely burdened with so called national teaching subjects, and according to that, with the nationalist political rhetoric. Unfortunately, everyone is familiar with the case of “two schools under one roof” – schools which are directly based on discriminatory practices.

Bearing in mind some of these facts, it is easy to conclude how the peace education in Bosnia and Herzegovina is an important and necessary pledge for a better future. In this sense, the TPO team was able to accomplish, formalize and strengthen the partnership and coordination support with the Ministry of Education and Pedagogical Institute of Sarajevo and Tuzla Canton. This was a huge success because it should be remembered that without the support of the officials, the TPO Foundation would not have legitimacy or an ability to work with a large number of teachers, and in particular would have no legitimacy to build partnerships and start networking processes between schools.

Activity 3 Eight (8) trainings for teachers to use the methodology of work and teaching of a Global Ethic Under the School Roof in Sarajevo and Tuzla Canton

The first additional workshop for Canton Sarajevo was held on March 21 - 22, 2015 for teachers from Sarajevo Canton. The workshop was attended by twenty five (25) participants from seventeen (17) high schools. Regarding the profile of teachers who were present at the workshop, it should be noted that teachers who teach subjects such as philosophy, sociology and democracy and human rights and confessional religious education dominated in this workshop.

The second workshop was held on March 28 - 29, 2015 for teachers from Sarajevo Canton. The workshop was attended by twenty three (23) participants from fifteen (15) high schools. In this workshop dominated teachers who teach confessional religious education and culture of religion.

The third workshop was held on May 30 - 31, 2015 for teachers from Sarajevo Canton. The workshop was attended by a total of twenty (20) participants from ten (10) secondary schools. In this workshop dominated teachers who teach confessional religious education, culture of religion, democracy and human rights as well as English.

Rodni stereotipi: Zvuči poznato?

Transkulturalna psihosocijalna obrazovna Fondacija Sarajevo, u suradnji s Fakultetom političkih nauka Univerziteta u Sarajevu, upriličila je predstavljanje publikacije "Rodni stereotipi: Zvuči poznato?", odnosno zbirke esaja, komentara i crtica koju je uredila Monja Šuta-Hibert.

Publikacija predstavlja, kako se navodi, jedinstvenu kombinaciju edukativnih stripova s kraćim tekstovima koji tematiziraju različita rodna i feministička pitanja i aspekte vezane za obrazovanje, patrijarhalne i obiteljske vrijednosti, pravo, znanost, religiju, politiku, medije, nasilje u porodici i brojne druge rodno zasnovane diskriminacijske prakse.

Docentica Lejla Mušić kazala je da koristeći se esejskim pristupom, stripovnim prikazom, diskusijom i analizom, te osvrtnom na statističke podatke, ova publikacija "pomjera fokus ka višeslojnosti problematike mizoginije u rodno odnosima, pogotovo onim neprijetnim dimenzijama u kojima se razvijaju i jačaju kršenja ženskih ljudskih prava".

Ovim predstavljanjem, na kojemu su prisutnima obratila i Jasmina Čaušević, jedna od autorica ove publikacije, kao i autor crteža prikazanih u publikaciji Jakov Čaušević, zvanično je počela kampanja TPO Fondacije Sarajevo "16 dana aktivizma protiv rodno zasnovanog nasilja" u sklopu koje će se, u suradnji s osnovnim i srednjim školama u Sarajevu, Tuzli, Zenici, Živinicama, Srebreniku, Novom Šeheru i Podlugovima održati nekoliko izložbi, promocija i radionica za mlade. Uz predstavljanje publikacije "Rodni stereotipi: Zvuči poznato?" upriličena je i izložba stripova "BaukFemiNauk".

XIV RESEARCH ON GENDER AND LEADERSHIP

TPO Foundation's work is underpinned by its research and academic activities that help us to pursue collaboration between academia and civil sector. An important activity this year was research on gender and leadership in business and politics conducted by professor Zilka Spahić Šiljak, and her colleagues: professor Dževad Šehić from the School of Economics in Sarajevo, and Suada Penava from Sarajevo. Three research assistants helped with conducting interviews and preliminary analysis: Melika Šahinović, Slađana Milin and Saida Mustajbegović.

The research was designed under the auspices of Stanford University and the supervision of professor Myra Strober and Katheryne Jolluck. Letter of invitations for interviews were sent to politicians from B&H and entity parliaments and some answered and accepted interviews via email and phone call while many of them had to be contacted via private connections. Managers were more professional and all answered via emails or phone calls and accepted to provide names of their co-workers for the standardized MLQ questionnaire. Two third of the political leaders did not want to provide the names for MLQ questionnaire because they were afraid of what their co-workers could tell about them and their work. All interviews were recorded, transcribed and analyzed and the final report was written.

XV CONFERENCE “TRAUMA, MEMORY AND HEALING ON THE BALKANS AND BEYOND”

TPO Foundation, together with its partners has developed and held a couple of meetings on the occasion for the conference “Trauma, Memory and Healing in the Balkans and beyond”, which is planned to be realized in the middle of next year. During 2015, we worked on the planning and organization of the conference, as well as collecting the materials necessary for the presentation of the theme that, in today's BH society, is one of the under-presented problems and society is not sufficiently favorable nor has implemented the necessary activities aimed at the treatment and prevention of trauma and ways of healing the individuals and communities in Bosnia and Herzegovina and beyond.

The conference will be held on 12-14 July 2016, which aims to create an interdisciplinary archive of knowledge and opportunities for treatment of memories and trauma in the Balkans and beyond. In a region that has experienced excessive violence during three wars in the last century, trauma scars are deep and overlapping. Multiple memories are not simple stories of suffering but through contestable victimization narratives play an important role in the socio-political programs. From a historical perspective, the experience of pain and great loss affecting all parties to the armed conflict and repressive regimes, it is clear that the entire community bear the overall impact of trauma in their anatomy and psyche, which requires recognition and healing.

XVI SUMMER SCHOOL 2016 – DEMYTHOLOGIZING NATIONS AND IDENTITIES: BOSNIA-HERZEGOVINA’S MEDIEVAL PAST IN A EUROPEAN CONTEXT

During 2015, TPO Foundation began another in series of activities with the Faculty of Philosophy, University of Zenica. This time the partnership was realized together with the University of Regensburg. The aim of cooperation is the realization of the summer school which is planned for the next year. The program aims to stimulate reflection on how the medieval myths of identity and belonging to influence the contemporary discourse of nation and national identity. TPO Foundation and its partners held several meetings in order to define the activities and agenda of the summer school and the organization of participants and speakers at the summer school. All participants agreed that the presentation of new archival material seeks to demythologize aspects of Bosnian historiography, which presents a problem for the construction of peace and the establishment of a more inclusive education system. In this way, the planned program will interrogate the current revision of historiography in Bosnia and Herzegovina and the former Yugoslavia.

Summer school will be closely linked to the international conference “Trauma, Memory, Healing in the Balkans and Beyond” to be held in Sarajevo on 12 - 14 July, 2016. The conference deals with the issue of direct long-term legacy of violence and its impact on the establishment of peace. In the spirit of that, the Summer School will deal with the historical period that is of vital importance for our country and the entire region, especially if we take into account the importance that the medieval period was the revival of national myths and identity.
